RVC Studies Latin Influence

To Promote Understanding; Dr. Roscoe Will Carry On

Leave System Revamped; Reports to be Submitted

Details of the movement of Royal Victoria College to Latin America were announced last night by members of the RVC House Committee.

Seems that in order to promote better understanding — of everything — between the countries of South America and the rest of the world, RVC girls will subject themselves to the Latin influence for a considerable period of time.

Dr. Roscoe will carry on by long distance from MonGrel.

In order to have adequate coverage of the immense distances in South America, the girls of RVC will spread themselves out in definite areas over the entire region. These areas have not yet been definitely located; however, certain things have already been decided.

It is rumored that the fifth floor may be moved to Brazil, where all men are well over six feet in height. It is hoped, however, that they will not be left high and dry. Especially dry.

Fourth floor residents, who are accustomed to keeping themselves in physically fit condition in the

Philosophers Plan Transference of Society to Egypt

Envisage Novel Way of Holding Future Meetings

The newly-elected President of the MonGrel Philosophical Society, Rexford P. U. Nose, announced last night that the Society will leave shortly for Egypt to establish permanent headquarters there.

There was much bitter controversy over the question. Professor Hardy MacLaden desired that the club should adopt Ethics as the ideal spot for undertaking discussions destined to arrive at a knowledge of the true moral good in life. Amidst these ideal surroundings, where most world-famous moral philosophers had thought out their ideas, the members, he stated, would be apt to become infused

The biggest moving van to be seen around the MonGrel doghouse this bright and shiny morning is the one bringing the beer and pretzels for the M.W.S.A.A. Banquet tonight. Although time, place and menu are being kept strictly secret, it was announced in an official communique last night that the mongrelles, wearing the badges of their orders, will gather in the Union Grill Room at 6.30.

Brave Student Bares Conspiracy To the World

Faculty and Some Students Are at Fault

We on this newspaper feel that there is a fraud being practised on the students of this university that it is our solemn duty to denounce. The subtlety of the conspirators was such that it might have gone unnoticed were it not for the wide awake minds of our staff. So ever since the possibility of such a low vile deed has appeared we have kept our eyes wide open and the results have been startling.

Perhaps many of the students will be wondering why we did not reveal what we are about to reveal earlier in the year that all the plotters might have been deterred from their vicious conspiracy. Well, the truth is, we dared not, for the students who a part in the plot were abetted and encouraged by the most upright of the professors of this

Better Understanding Amongst Nations Is Fostered by Move

Economists Go Southwards

Each Department Is To Assume Different Studies

Set Up Homotopia With Help of Dr. Froscoe

At long last it has happened, the MonGrel Political Economy Club has announced that it is going to prove to all objectors that its policy of refusing to permit women as members of its Society is based on sound, wise, economic, moral, and otherwise ethical principles. Yes, the Club had decided to prove its contention that ladies in any Society make it a bad society by that long established method of experimentation.

Now, all and sundry may question this method of proof and some may even dare to oppose the policy of this long and honoured male institution of the Campus. But let me (names will be given later), as official representatives of the MonGrel Economy Club, tell you that the decision to even attempt to prove our unquestionable policy was only arrived at after long, lengthy, and difficult periods of deliberation (see Val. 67852F of Farsard on Page 0923).

But how are we going to prove this dictum that women spell evil on any society. Well, the answer is simple and is very easy to follow even by the non-economic and apathetic artsman. The solution to the question was in fact evolved by no other than that reputable and distinguished Fommerce student Mighty Mite and his fellow students Fon Felvin, Foe Fonolly, and Fim FcKee aided no doubt by that venerable and senile Uncle Fohn.

The way suggested was that the MonGrel Political Ec. Club should move to one of the South Sea Islands, throw out its inhabitants, set up an ideal state consisting of males only, i.e. a Utopia without women. The name suggested for this new home is "HOMOTOPIA" derived from the Latin homo meaning man and the Sanskrit topia meaning home. Further details of the scheme are to be filled in by the Advisory and Honourary members of the Economy club assisted by the experienced Dr. Froscoe of frvc.

When asked about this proposal, Dr. Fommeneon of the Fecomomics Department at MonGrel University stated that the idea was "brilliant"

In order to increase the good-fellowship now existing between the various nations on this globe, it has been decided to separate MonGrel University into segments like an orange, and cast it to the four winds so that it may, by inculcating Canadian ideas into these people, lead them to a better mode of life.

Arts and Science is to go to the Belgian Congo. There the students will learn the intricate steps of the Conga from the Conger Eels. They will teach the Monkeys and the Apes to decline Latin and Greek, as every sensible person should. They will also instruct the backward Pygmies in Geometrical Progression.

Hawaii is the destination of the Theologs. In that land of Hula-hula, the little ministers will turn the natives to the straight and narrow, and change them from their contorted sinful ways. It is also expected that the Hawaiians will teach the theologs to wear grass skirts, though, to show that they are theologs, the boys will, in all likelihood, wear them backward.

The Faculty of Music will go to Australia, where they will be taught to play the lyre-bird. They have been requested by the Government of the Dominion, moreover, to train the more versatile of the native kangaroos to be one-man bands, for which purpose the animals are better adapted than the Germans who usually perform this necessary office.

The dentists are off to Formosa, to the cannibals. There, with their vast knowledge of things dental they are expected to become, in a very short time, the pride of the island. It is devoutly to be hoped that the natives will never fall upon such hard times that they will be forced to swallow their pride.

The Law faculty is off to the Indian jungles where they are expected to unravel the law of the jungle which Kipling so tangled up in one of his poems. It is expected also that the lawyers will be taught by the natives a new method of settling cases with knives, and generally referred to as slitting.

The commerce men are to visit Russia.

The Library School has been invited by the Italian Government to help catalogue population so that some account of it may be had before it is entirely captured.

Archimedes Attracts All Astronomers

The Mathematical Club of MonGrel University, one of the most dignified and exclusive societies on the campus, is planning to leave for Syracuse to study applied mathematics under Archimedes. The course is expected to consist mainly in some of the finer points of bathroom technique, and deportment while brushing around in negligee attire.

The sole member of the club, Omond Raybles, stated that the course would be split into the following parts: the correct attitude to adopt when spilling water out of the bath tub, especially if there is a producer below; an extensive and rigorous training in cross-country running, in order to escape from cops, if any; the correct pronunciation for Ureka, or its exact equivalent in eighteen different languages; and last, but not least, the correct deportment if there are no policemen around.

It is expected that the lone student mathematico will be accompanied by several faculty members, Professors Mulligvan, Millians, Maul, Moss, Maignt, and others.

Choral Society To Choral Island

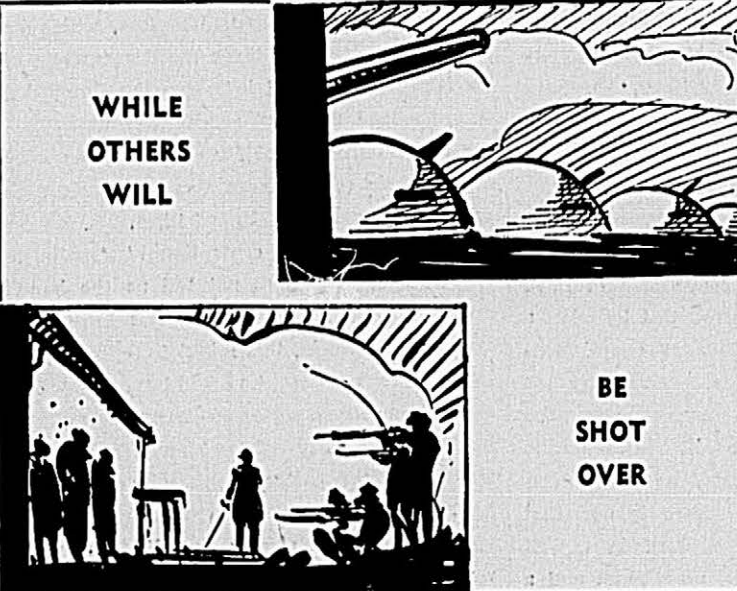

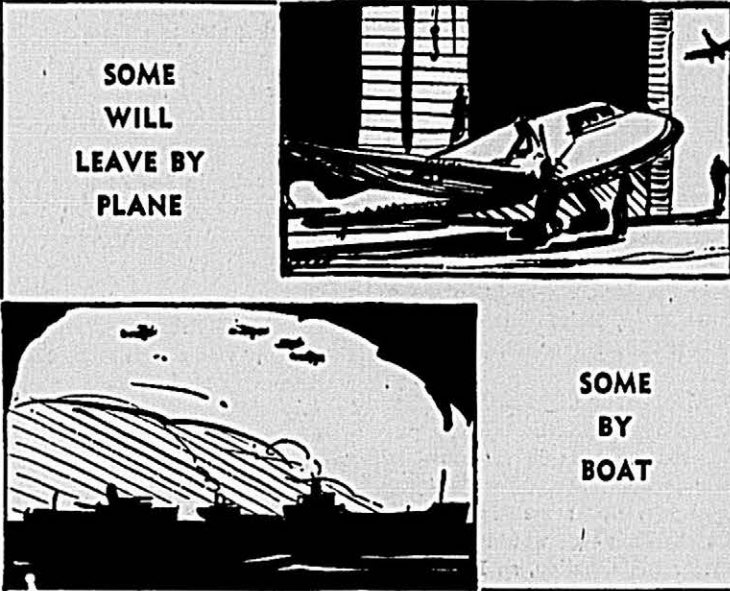

Songsters Sing Sweetly 'Neath Southern Skies

Following its concert on the twenty-eighth of March, the McGill Choral Society will pack up its music and migrate to the sunny shores of Coromandel. There, 'neath tropical skies these famous music-lovers of McGill will fill the air with their tuneful voices.

Once more will spread the tales of Sirens, who lure the ravished mariners to their island. The handsome men and beautiful women in this society assure anyone who may be travelling in the vicinity of the South Seas that they will be hospitably received if lured to Coromandel, and that everything possible will be done to make them comfortable.

During their leisure hours, the society will study the technique of the natives, who are famous for the beauty and sweetness of their song.

"On the coast of Coromandel Sing they to the tunes of Handel; Chorally, that coral coast Correlates the bone to ghost. Till word and limb and note seem one, Blending, blinding act to tone."

Modern Dance School Moves

Hoko-Moko Isle Is Scene of Turmoil

Due to the fact that there are termites in the Orange Peel Tavern, the girls of the MonGrel University Modern Dance Club have had to evacuate the premises immediately, and move to Hoko-Moko, a small island in Tanganyika.

Hitch-hiking will not be allowed this year, so the girls have decided, after a deliberation meeting, swinging clubs at Al, to "zitky" in the Modern Manner straight to their destination, if they can sober up.

At 4:00 a.m., the girls, their club set Al, were bundled together in real tramway style, a can of Olive oil was thrown in to make them look like tuna fish, the dance instructor, clubs et al, gave the count, the Stardusters (plug) gave out with boogie-woogie, and thus began the wonderful journey to the land of the origination of the con-

Women Scientists to Show Esquimaux Technique

Following the general trend of affairs as demonstrated by the man (and woman) in the street of MonGrel, the Women's Science Club executive when interviewed through a rapidly vaporizing conglomeration of alembics, crucibles and retorts stated to your (and incidentally my) favorite reporter her intention to visit a country where men are made of baser metal.

The executive then went on to describe the necessity for higher temperatures and pressures if the important researches now being carried on are to be brought to a successful conclusion. She loudly lamented the fact that in those places where temperatures run high in the tropic moonlight pressures are notoriously low like the characters of the inhabitants, whilst in regions of impressive pressure temperatures are emotionally in profundis.

Therefore, rejecting the idea of going to the S.C.M. Spring Camp (plug) owing to the lack of the necessary equipment and the possibility of the results obtained being too tangible, and after a loud explosion had stressed the need for a quick decision, the club made up its mind to devote its energy to spreading goodwill amongst the Esquimaux by migrating to his bosom and instilling in him the more remarkable secrets of modern technique.

As the fumes of the explosion filled the surrounding atmosphere the executive launched herself on a sea of description as to her future activities, sailed boldly into an account of the club's plans for establishing a colony of "ants" in the North, and finally arrived herself in Greenland, by an ingenious application of Mr. Einstein's theory, with which she showed as much familiarity as the club did with the natives.

The members affirmed their reasons for moving to the north as being chiefly a wild desire to discover if the local inhab-

Announced at an unearthly hour last night was the immediate transference of the centre of operations of the MonGrel International Relations Club to an unnamed point in the centre of the Andes mountains. Speaking by mule-cable from somewhere in Popocatapetl, the well known mountain of flame, el presidente Roberto of the club stated that he had finally discovered a district where International Relations could be carried on successfully.

Although inextricably intermingled with bursts of fire extinguisher fire his message came through sufficiently well to make clear the reasons for this sudden move. Apparently the rather volcanic conditions present, make it possible for views to be exchanged in an atmosphere of congeniality that is surprisingly warm.

Around the Campus

OTTAWA: The earthly remains of Millam Byon Rackenzle Sing are unfortunately enough, still in office at Ottawa. The man is dead, but he won't lie down.

MONTREAL: THE EDITOR-Elect of the DAILY is unlikely to be at large in time to take his mantle of office in the coming year. His recent arrest as go-between for the hashish and cocaine dealers who are swamping the campus with their goods, is likely to lead to a longish sentence. This at any rate is the opinion of Chief-Constable Girouard of our Mongrel Police.

HOLLYWOOD: The success of the newest stage sensation "Campus Life" presented at the Hollywood Bowl has astounded the critics. Chief interest is a fan-dance performed by that lively terpsichordian Rank Byril Hames of a noted Canadian University. Some doubt is expressed by commentators as to the warmth of the scholar's reception on return to his "alter officio"; the country of the Maple Leaf is less prone to countenance such breaches of precedent than are the happy-go-lucky Foo peoples.

Around the Globe

Today: Economists start preliminary preparations on their proposed Homotopia in the South Sea Islands in order to prove that women are — in any Fampus Society. . . R.V.C. will start its flight down to settle in South America. . . Basketball Club and trainers along with Flenn Fowan go to Addis Ababa to compete with the Fetoplans. . . People are reading the MonGrel Daily and any who have not started to read it will do so immediately even if it is in the middle of a lecture. . . English Literature Society is fleeing to Lalland. . . All the Faculties of the University prepare to make their voyages, trips, expeditions, rides, flights, et al around the Fworld.

Tomorrow: Read the MonGrel Daily all over again and see if you can understand it (we don't). . . Girls object at the Economist's Homotopia. . .

After-Tomorrow: Everyone starts to study for their exams and we don't mean maybe for its only approximately one month and less than a half to examinations deadline i.e. before tests start in the Arts and Fience and Fommerce Facs. . . Chess Club Go to France To Inspect 'French Defence'

The entire personnel of the Chess Club is shortly going to move to France, to inspect at first hand some of the workings of the French Defence that are at present obscure. It is expected that many prominent personalities of MonGrel will give way to their insatiable curiosity, and accompany the addicts of chess, in the hope of gaining a clearer and better appreciation of life through the study of some of the finer points of chess.

A member of the executive of the club stated that the party would probably be travelling by clipper plane, in order that more of the players may be further acquainted with the tremendous potentialities connected with the acquisition, tenure, and loss of castles in the air, as it is felt that too many chess players are not familiar with this, one of the most obscure points of the ancient, hoary, venerable, and well-nigh decrepit game, which has alternately been a boon, bane, blessing, means to cultural advancement, hindrance to, and help to our modern system of civilization, though the latter is only fully appreciated by those who have a deep, sincere, and unfeigned admiration for chess, its closed defences, including, of course such standbys as the French Defence, the Caro-Kahn Defence, the Sicilian Defence, the Philidor Defence, the Steinitz Defence to the Ruy Lopez Knight's Game, and the Slav Defence to the Queen's Pawn

Game, its open defences, its hyper-modern defences, and its various modes of attack, which give the green bedecked froth of MonGrel an insight into some rather complicated military manoeuvres, and also the mode of conducting middle- and end-game strategy, the former being the happy hunting ground of such combinationists as the Knight-Owl, while the latter is the undisputed province of masters, grand masters, world champions, and other giants in the game, who transcend such limitations as are to be observed when players of less austere insight attempt to duplicate similar, though distinct points in the conduct of the end-game.

After dictating this epistle, this executor of the club's affairs came out with the startling announcement that the club would officially confine its activities to the study of chess. This officer then qualified his remarks by saying that he would not be responsible for any artsmen on the trip who strayed from the straight and narrow path, indicating that all others, being genuinely alive, had already strayed from it.

Then an exclusive interview was obtained with the great and silent 'one of the Chess Club. This gentleman said yes and goodbye to the first seven questions put to him, and after that returned to his interrupted, though obviously untenable game.

Those wishing to go to France are reminded that the party will leave the steps of R.C.V. at 5 a.m. tomorrow morning.

He mentioned that it would be the least he could do to show his appreciation and that it would also give him great pleasure to furnish ivory-inlaid typewriters and plush furniture for their convenience (most welcome owing to drastic contrast).

General Smuts also mentioned that he hopes his diet of beer and skittles will comply with the temperance of the Daily intelligentsia.

Basketball Boys Leave Montreal For Ethiopia

Plan to Start Cage Loop In Addis Ababa

The great MonGrel basketball team, which has gone through its third consecutive season without winning a game, has decided to move to Addis Ababa, where basketball is never played, and hence they would not be able to lose any more games. Some of the more enthusiastic followers of the team suggest that it would be appropriate to start a basketball league in that city, maintaining that the MonGrel team might possibly win a game or two, before any of their opponents learned to play it.

Accordingly, the entire team will congregate at the Winnel station next Saturday at noon, and are reminded that their baggage must not exceed 175 pounds in weight. It is hoped that the one spectator who has so far attended all their games will not accompany the team on their Ethiopian excursion, as many believe that his depressing countenance was responsible for the prolonged losing streak of the team.

In view of the fact that this body will be soon leaving for distant lands, they are holding a farewell dinner in the MonGrel Union in honour of their great achievements in the field of sports. It is believed that they will follow the custom set up at the "MonGrel Daily" banquet by drinking frequent toasts to themselves with empty glasses of water.

It was confirmed by the manager of the team, that their motto was, "We lose every basketball game but the last." Elaborating on this he explained that his team could not bear to end their basketball career, and hence had never the heart to win a match.

Eng. Literature Society on Lam

Flees to Lapland By Way of Jericho

It was announced by Mary M. Molar, president of the MonGrel Literature Society, and president of the Universal Sage and Apple-polishing Society; that the society will amskray up to Lapland where they will proceed to lap beer to their hearts' content.

Originally reservations were made for Jericho, where most people join in wishing their safe arrival, including the Scholars' and Gentlemen's Society, their hated rivals, but on hearing the walls were down and the Axis forces around the corner, they decided to check out and hie themselves off to points north.

The majority of the society were ditched at Aklavik, to inculcate phoney propaganda among Eskimos; but the executive mistook the northern lights for a fete-de-nuit and wound up in Spitzbergen. At last the worthy president alone and a small bunch of her troubadours were left; but met up with Santa Claus and thus the 1941-1942 session really closed.

News of their fate reached Montreal in an empty bottle of Frolson's; cryptically stated in the following grim couplet: "Now with these ersatz erudites up here Some ignorant Lapps will be wiser next year."

Principle Prevented From Purpose of Pantlers

It was given out late this morning over Radio Confusion that the principle of MonGrel varsity had suffered a severe setback in the attempt to spread the university's cultures (in germ form) around the globe and the campus at the same time.

Where this mysterious principle is at work at the moment was not divulged. In fact it was carefully draped in the the most discreet manner. The purpose of the principle is to conceal the direction of its next move so that it may pull it off by new pantser methods.

PQRS Will Visit Norway

Students Are Scheduled to Learn Fishing

Within the campus wide organization of the PQRS, plans are being completed for an extended stay in Hell, Norway, in the not too distant future, when exams no longer burden the mind of the odd students.

This trip, which is scheduled to extend well over the summer months, will afford members of this organization to perfect their technique of fishing, which seems to have developed into a major occupation if not actually a profession, with many of them.

It is not quite clear just what they hope to catch with the bait which has been in common use among the majority. It is rumored they have become aware of the deplorable lack of suckers on this side of the pond, and are seeking fresh hunting grounds on the other side where fish are more plentiful in order to see whether it is their methods or the lack of prey which is responsible for the diminishing returns.

In conjunction with the fishing business, it is anticipated that they

The Phi Epsilon Alpha Society has announced that in the early spring it will move in a body to a desert island in the Caribbean. These silver-tongued orators firmly believe that they will be able to convince the German government and people of the error of their ways, and bring them around to our way of thinking. (Heaven help them.)

Their plan of action is being kept a deep secret, but it is believed that the attack will be begun in a subtle manner, growing stronger and more forceful as the brilliant arguments of our spokesmen begin to take root.

Basketball Boys Leave Montreal For Ethiopia

Plan to Start Cage Loop In Addis Ababa

The great MonGrel basketball team, which has gone through its third consecutive season without winning a game, has decided to move to Addis Ababa, where basketball is never played, and hence they would not be able to lose any more games. Some of the more enthusiastic followers of the team suggest that it would be appropriate to start a basketball league in that city, maintaining that the MonGrel team might possibly win a game or two, before any of their opponents learned to play it.

Accordingly, the entire team will congregate at the Winnel station next Saturday at noon, and are reminded that their baggage must not exceed 175 pounds in weight. It is hoped that the one spectator who has so far attended all their games will not accompany the team on their Ethiopian excursion, as many believe that his depressing countenance was responsible for the prolonged losing streak of the team.

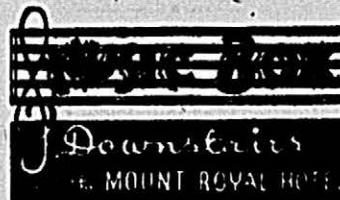

In view of the fact that this body will be soon leaving for distant lands, they are holding a farewell dinner in the MonGrel Union in honour of their great achievements in the field of sports. It is believed that they will follow the custom set up at the "MonGrel Daily" banquet by drinking frequent toasts to themselves with empty glasses of water.

It was confirmed by the manager of the team, that their motto was, "We lose every basketball game but the last." Elaborating on this he explained that his team could not bear to end their basketball career, and hence had never the heart to win a match.

optimistic would ever dream that their oratory could sway that maddest of madmen, Adolphie, but we are confident that the masses will see the light and that the Gestapo will do the dirty work.

She was only an optician's dotter—two glasses and she made a spectacle of herself.

Your Downtown RENDEZVOUS

Eng. Literature Society on Lam

Flees to Lapland By Way of Jericho

It was announced by Mary M. Molar, president of the MonGrel Literature Society, and president of the Universal Sage and Apple-polishing Society; that the society will amskray up to Lapland where they will proceed to lap beer to their hearts' content.

Originally reservations were made for Jericho, where most people join in wishing their safe arrival, including the Scholars' and Gentlemen's Society, their hated rivals, but on hearing the walls were down and the Axis forces around the corner, they decided to check out and hie themselves off to points north.

The majority of the society were ditched at Aklavik, to inculcate phoney propaganda among Eskimos; but the executive mistook the northern lights for a fete-de-nuit and wound up in Spitzbergen. At last the worthy president alone and a small bunch of her troubadours were left; but met up with Santa Claus and thus the 1941-1942 session really closed.

News of their fate reached Montreal in an empty bottle of Frolsen's; cryptically stated in the following grim couplet:
"Now with these ersatz erudites up here
Some ignorant Lapps will be wiser next year."

Principle Prevented From Purpose of Panthers

It was given out late this morning over Radio Confusion that the principle of Mongrel varsity had suffered a severe setback in the attempt to spread the university's cultures (in germ form) around the globe and the campus at the same time.

Where this mysterious principle is at work at the moment was not divulged. In fact it was carefully draped in the the

most discreet manner. The purpose of the principle is to conceal the direction of its next move so that it may pull it off by new pantser methods.

Players Go Hollywoods

"Grease from the Skillet" Cast is Moved Westward

Hiccup Marvie, president of the Players' Club announced tonight that as a consequence of the successful production "Grease from the Skillet," the club will migrate to Hollywood to produce the motion picture of this epic, which received such a tremendous ovation from audiences, who attended the production at Mouse Hall, on the Mon-grel Campus.

Repeated offers have been received, said Mr. Marvie, from all the large motion picture companies, but due to the pressure of studies and social activities the executive was unable to accept these offers. Now that the faculties are moving to other countries as a good-will gesture, the Club jumped at the chance of combining good will with business.

The Hollywood studio that has invited the members of the club out to the west coast, must remain a secret at the moment but the president of the corporation has the initials M.G.M. The entire cast of "Grease on the Skillet" will be moved bodily and will travel by strato-

PQRS Will Visit Norway

Students Are Scheduled to Learn Fishing

Within the campus wide organization of the PQRS, plans are being completed for an extended stay in Hell, Norway, in the not too distant future, when exams no longer burden the mind of the odd students.

This trip, which is scheduled to extend well over the summer months, will afford members of this organization to perfect their technique of fishing, which seems to have developed into a major occupation if not actually a profession, with many of them.

It is not quite clear just what they hope to catch with the bait which has been in common use among the majority. It is rumored they have become aware of the deplorable lack of suckers on this side of the pond, and are seeking fresh hunting grounds on the other side where fish are more plentiful in order to see whether it is their methods or the lack of prey which is responsible for the diminishing returns.

In conjunction with the fishing business, it is anticipated that they

MonGrel Union Moved to Spain

Cadiz to Be Scene

Thinking Students Ask Questions

Birthplace of Plato
Discussed by Scholars

A CASTLE IN SPAIN! What fun! MonGrel students will shortly reach the zenith of happiness. They will have their own castle in Spain. And this castle is none other than the old and staunch MonGrel Union. The reason for this unexpected transport of joy is the fact that moving day is here.

Of course, the thinking student asks, "With which means of moving does the members of the Union House Committee think that they will carry out the Union to Spain with?" We reply unequivocally and without hesitation.

Question Asked

The next question that will come our way was, "I think that this is a good thing, since students will then be forced to visit Spain if they are going to see the Union at all." To this all we can say is "Spain is reputedly an excellent country for visitors having wine, bullfighters, and Spanish music and food. Despite what you may hear to the contrary, Plato was not born while the family was on tour in Egypt; no, he was born in Spain; yes, he was born at Gades (the modern Cadiz) while the family was on tour in Egypt; and indeed at the very sight of MonGrel's castle in Spain, for Cadiz is where it is."

The other thinking student will ask, "This change, why it was made and for what good reason was it done—that I would ask if you think you could answer for me of it." To this in turn we reply, "McGill is moving. Go to the Library. Go to the museum. Go to the observatory. You won't find them. They've moved away. They've gone to many different places. It is fitting. It is also fitting that the Union move."

There was a great deal of argument among the philosophers, who unanimously asserted that the Union should be moved to Andalusia, since this place was the birthplace of Kant, reputedly one of the better-known of German philosophers. This was voted down by the classicists who saw that if there was to be any change it must inevitably be for the better. This, we think, will meet with the hearty and unrestrained approval of some at least of the thinking students at MonGrel.

Presbyterians Move Dragon

erns from the north flat to the staffs stalls. 'Who—who is the dragon,' reverberates amidst faint echoes of 'Where is Heribson?' or 'Why didn't I win?' (sorrowfully). 'Why didn't I win?' (more sorrowfully, obviously referring to something else) 'why didn't I win?' ad infinitum. In the distance the roaring rush of the Morris flat auto gyro in its last crashing gasp amidst the early morning milk bottles can be discerned, clear as a bell.

The dragon, dear children if you are still listening to this daily rhyme is none other than a statue, a statue of innocence and swaggleglop, something to be endured and forasidit and, well, anything you like but definitely to be moved. (Something is fishy said the worm as he crawled gaily across the dining room plate having emerged from his fish for the first time into the clear buoyant air of the raz-ma-taz hash house.)

The dragon is to be moved to a place of much greater safety so the rumor goes for one and all agree that such a statue is out of place among the mongrels of the plus four pluto p.m. plutocrats. "Long live the dragon, long live the dragon," echoes from the committee rooms. "Away with the dragon, away with the dragon," bellows the united larynx of a thousand throats.

And so justice prevailed and the dragon was last night removed to a quiet cellar where non can disturb, or vice versa.

But Blinks the Whinkins, earnest bathtub salesman of points unknown, blew his gullet in a vain attempt to bodily-carry the dragon back into the chilled atmosphere of the p.c.-shangrila, after his rash dash to the forbidden cellar. "La-mour, lamour," screamed Whinkins as he gazed rapturously into jaded, glazed headlights of the copious statue, "wherefore art thou Romeo?" was the soothing, slushy reply. (Censored.)

And all the while the crashing echoes of "Dey done me wrong" (more slowly) "dey done me wrong," (vibrating) "I was robbed," and the last sob "I shall yet prevail," plastered the atmosphere with pure, unadulterated, drip, (drip, drip, drip, drip, drip.)

MWSAA Has Last Dinner

type, beginning at "Trente-cinq sous," and mounting up the scale to 4 bits. The main business of the meeting will be passing a motion to dispose of the B. and P. and for this reason a quorum is absolutely necessary.

After this, the Amazon-in-Chief will announce to the aroused MonGrelles their plans for Moving Day. The M.W.S.A.A., though this has been kept strictly secret so that no other Doghouse Clubbes can horn in on it, is determined to pack its cosmetic bags secretly in the dead of noon and slowaway in the Political Economy Club's yacht. Then, when the Mighty Men have set up their PERFECT (womenless) STATE in the South Sea Islands, and are thinking wistfully of the girls they left behind them, the M.W.S.A.A.—all 300 of them—will jump out, coyly calling (say that 10 times fast) "Thurprithe! Thurprithe!"

When all the details of this diabolic and demonic plan have been revealed, all deserving MonGrelles will be given ribbons and things to wear around their necks, and if they have been very good, bells might even be put on the ribbons. After this whistles and catcalls will be indulged in, until enough old shoes have been collected. When this stage has been completed, a rummage sale will be held, and the prophets will go to buy more B. and P. for sustenance on the voy age out.

MRTB Sees Berchtesgaden

sidered this a necessary part of the education of every army man.

This cordial invitation, presented last week in person by Herr Goering to Major Frown, was received with some surprise, and it was first felt that it would be necessary to decline with regret. However, when a closer perusal of the dainty missive (the letter had been playfully concealed in a bomb) revealed a note of urgency regarding the pending spring cleaning in Berchtesgaden, as it was felt that the M.R.T.B. might be of use.

Furthermore, it was felt that their services would be invaluable in cleaning up the joint prior to their exhibition of their own particular brand of paper hanging—with paper specially designed to soothe Mr. Schickelgruber in his moments of depression, which result from his yearning to know the gentle Russian clime, and the even gentler Russian people, who have an equal yearning for him to indulge his passion for seeing their country.

As their arrival at the modest Berchtesgaden cottage was guaranteed by its retiring owner, some fear was felt for their safety. This was not allayed when it was learned that Herr Goering was on the party crossing, and the rumor was circulating that, on the way over, the ship had listed heavily every time he moved to the rail, due to the weight of armor plate he wears, disguised as decorations. If the return voyage were rough it was almost certain that his continuous presence at the rail would prove disastrous, but it was learned from authoritative sources that Herr Schickelgruber felt he needed the scrap iron in Goering's decorations to finish his present campaign, so he had issued an order to the Atlantic for calm weather. A pleasant time was had by all.

corridors of the building, will keep up this practice in the mountain passes of Chile. Some of the girls, it is rumored, don't think this will be so hot, and are already passing around a petition to have themselves passed on somewhere else.

Third floor has been left out. It is understood, however, that they may be rationed off to the engineers, who are going to Germany to study conditions there.

Tierra del Fuego will be the district for the girls of RVC's second floors. No logical explanation of this move is available, but you're welcome to your own guess. Hint—translate the name of the place. In order to facilitate sociological studies of the country, the authorities realize that it will be necessary for the girls to spend considerable time among the citizens of the country. To this end, the well famed RVC leave system has been revamped, and the girls will now be able . . .

Non-resident students, under this plan, will travel about the South American countries in gypsy camps, seeing South America in the raw. That is to say, their special problem is to inspect the wild life of the republics. Flora and Fauna are also to be observed (birds, bees, and flowers).

Reports of this novel survey will be sent home to the warden of the college every month. Special arrangements have been made with the censorship bureau in Bermuda to allow these reports through in the diplomatic mails; emergency calls will be attended to by local authorities in South America.

Sahara will be taught to walk upright, so that no longer will their backs be humped.

To Germany the Engineers are delegated. The famous German Tiergarten are the supposed object of their study owing to a mistake on the part of the Germans that these MonGrellads are biologists, and a mistake on the part of the Engineers to the effect that it is the Biergarten they are to interest themselves in.

The Meds are off to Japan, according to report. Here they will be given the opportunity of studying anatomy at first hand, since it has been arranged by the government that no one is to commit harakiri unless there is a fully accredited Med student around to watch.

This information has not as yet been contradicted.

universally. But now, under the cover of a mongrel, we are barking the truth into the ears of all students, knowing that it cannot come back on us—on the retiring staff at least.

So now to the denunciation. We of this paper and we of this university who were not aware of the dastardly underhand work that has been going on herewith denounce all students who have undermined and seriously endangered the college life of the majority of McGill students by having started to study away back in October and having continued to study diligently day by day ever since so that now they are well on their way to gaining A's in all their exams, and thus prohibit all we unwary students from doing likewise. Therefore, we hereby advocate that a petition be submitted to the dean of all faculties preventing all such students from writing their exams, having gained their knowledge under false pretenses.

Economists Go Southward

and should prove to all unbelievers of the club policy that the idea is original and good at any rate.

Dr. Fay when asked for a statement asserted that in his youth he had attempted such a scheme but that it failed miserably since the supply price of labor could not be adhered to and the optimum of population could not be kept at a high enough level without any of the female species to help.

All were discouraged when Dr. Fay brought up his objections. But Dr. Fullton in his inimitable manner saved the day. He suggested that, in order to solve this problem, the Political Economy Club would set up a subsidiary island near Homotopia consisting only of women. Thus in this way Filiatopia can provide the workers required by the supply price of labour theory.

Mr. Fineberg, when asked for his opinion, averred that the legal aspects of the proposition would all be looked after if the judges judging the case were given each a keg of beer and were given the privilege of membership in the MonGrel Club. To prove his point he quoted a few cases and asked for the expert opinion of his Commerce III Class, who approved heartily of the idea since it was their own.

Late last evening in a special dispatch from the Foo News the-rumor that Dr. Roscoe had retired at the usual hour was confirmed and the nation wide whispering campaign was brought to an abrupt end. At press time, 1 a.m., no story could be obtained from the lady in question, since she is known to have been winking blinken and nod for several hours. The authorities in charge of the case consider the matter to be at an end.

Philosophers Plan Transference

with the ethical and highly etherial thought of past geniuses who had resided there. The Society would benefit greatly from such an association, he ventured to say.

Mr. Sea Curly was insistent on going to Spain, the place of birth of the famed author of the three "Critiques," but would have settled, upon compulsion, for Konigsberg (a spot from which Kant never strayed more than thirty miles in his life), where they could all bask in the still-prevalent light of such a mighty mind.

After these had spoken, however, Dr. Financial Centre Fooler arose and brought tears to the eyes of the gathering as, in a great flood of overwhelming, inundating oratory, he spoke of the advantages of going to the birthplace of Plato.

The greatest of Greek philosophers, he said, was born while his parents were on a journey in Egypt. The exact location is not generally known, but it is certain that it was not far from Alexandria. The Society, he continued, could purchase several ancient ocol and they would ride around in the general vicinity. Sooner or later, he added breathlessly, they would be bound to ride over the very spot where Plato was born.

The club considered this aspect as most thrilling. Morris Chair, B.A., said that the cost of such a trip would not be prohibitive: a friend of his in Cairo rents ocol and he would certainly give the Society a considerable discount. His suggestion was heartily approved and plans for the trip are going forward apace.

speechmakers to sprinkle their effusions with rarer jokes than usual and also renders long speeches impossible owing to fear of exhaustion. The culminating feature amongst the manifold attractions is the lack of any audience; which would render all politicians unnecessary.

The club is now planning to import all politicians to their new home by a process of mass seduction recently perfected. And it is hoped that on their arrival the absence of any civilized means of making war and the lack of any suitable cannon fodder will cause them to kill themselves as the only possible alternative. The convenient juxtaposition of the volcano should dispose of them very aptly by the hot seat method.

When this happens international relations will no longer exist, and the long-suffering members of the club may at last be permitted to depart in peace.

When the girls arrived at the Isle, there was a great commotion. The chief lost his false teeth keeping time to the boogie woogie piano boy from Company D, who got mixed up in his back-bearings, and wandered over from the M.R.T.B., stationed nearby.
